03. TIME TO CHOOSE A PROJECT

- Consultancy: Local entrepreneurs will present their businesses directly to the student, offering an inside look into real-world challenges and operations.
- Personal Project: Students will have the opportunity to develop their own startup or business idea as part of the program.
- Green Project: Students will have the opportunity to develop their own business idea with a focus on triple impact — generating economic value, creating social benefits, and promoting environmental sustainability.
- Process: Students may work individually or in teams, depending on the monthly cohort size or the academic structure of their university.

For Students (Group Format)

- Work in teams to develop short video segments that reflect your personal and professional interests. Explore discussion topics such as global education, entrepreneurship, sustainability, mental health, or innovation. Create engaging content for platforms like LinkedIn, Instagram, or TikTok, guided by media professionals. Showcase your international experience, your team, and your insights gained in Argentina. If there

For Professors (Individual Format)

- Record a professional video profile, ideal for use on academic websites, conferences, or social media. Share your thoughts on education, global collaboration, and your experience in Buenos Aires. Promote your institution through content that highlights its international partnerships and academic excellence. All content can be used to: Promote the home university's global engagement and academic programs. Highlight the impact of international experiences on both students and faculty strengthen institutional branding through authentic, high-quality media
